

Review – Nebraska

Good – 41

- Even flat, monochrome drabness can be art if it's done well enough.
- At first I thought we might be needing sub-titles. However, I managed to chortle at the oddball humour all the way through this often sad and depressing but always entertaining film. The bleak landscape and storyline could only have been shot in black and white. Excellent cast and choice once again. Many thanks.
- A GOOD choice of film. A mix of sad, funny and depressing; so accurate in its portrayal of life in rural North America. Worked really well in B/W. Bruce Dern played the part of Woody so very well and the rest of the cast were spot on. The ending was happier than I expected!

- Gently entertaining, improved as the film progressed. Very funny in places. Thank you; definitely worth seeing.
- Funny, touching film about the love ordinary people have for each other. Great performances. And doesn't it make you glad you don't live in America!
- Excellent performances especially from the 3 central characters, lots of gentle humour.
- I thought it was a good film and was very pleased to have seen it.
- Great acting.
- Excellent. Second time I'd seen it and I thought it was all pitched perfectly. Funny, poignant and the shots of the family all watching tv and the great mugging scene were still as entertaining as ever second time through.
- A delightful film especially in B&W. Good acting & some fine music. I stayed right to the end to hear it all. The scenery wasn't very enticing but that's realism for you.
- My husband and I and our guest all enjoyed it very much. Supper beforehand was delicious too, and such a perfect evening to sit outside. Delightful! Thank you.
- A very enjoyable film about family relationships and communication between generations. Intriguing use of high key black and white made for stunning landscapes.
- Good [very]. We enjoyed the film immensely, thank you.
- Very Good.
- I very much enjoyed last night's film. It was funny and I liked all the characters. Another nice evening, thank you.
- Quietly delivered an emotional punch. Humorous too, and the imagery of the mid-West will stay in the memory.
- Excellent, that's four really good films in a row (along with Boyhood, Ida and Keeping Rosy), well done to the selection committee! I was really looking forward to this one and it didn't disappoint. Laugh out loud funny in places, really touching, great acting and soundtrack.
- It took me some while to start enjoying the story and to warm to any of the characters, but gradually I started to find them sympathetic. What a cussed old man; his wife was great and knew how to command respect. Barely noticed it was black & white. Thank you committee - a good choice.
- We thought Nebraska was good and loved the ending!
- We enjoyed the film very much. Wasn't sure if we would, so was a great surprise. Funny and heart-warming.
- I thought it was very good. I'd literally come from visiting my dad in the home he's just gone into so it rang a lot of bells and initially, I thought it was going to be too depressing but it wasn't; just honest and understated and I learned a bit more about life from it. Thank you for screening it.
- Excellent film, really enjoyed along with my two friends.

- Super road movie with something extra. Haunting use of black and white in the dramatically empty scenery. Excellent performances by the father, Woody, and the son, David, redeeming their relationship on the road, and by the mother Kate, with a hilarious scene in the cemetery!
- Really enjoyed it. My thanks to the Programming Committee.
- Excellent film. Very good music enhancing the mood.
