

Review – Robot and Frank

Good – 36	OK – 2	Poor – 2
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• We found it a very enjoyable &amp; funny film &amp; thought provoking</li> <li>• Alan and I really enjoyed the film. It had plenty of amusing moments and some laugh out loud ones too. The revelation of Frank's relationship with the librarian was neatly done - not too mawkish. All in all great entertainment.</li> <li>• Very enjoyable and thought provoking. Really like these "out of the mainstream" films.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Gentle, quite thought provoking, enjoyed seeing fab Frank Langhella, comedy was a bit understated and it felt a bit artificial at times (no pun</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• I'm not sure it was worth over two hours of my life and the challenging drive across the fen and down the A47. Pretty</li> </ul>

<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• We enjoyed the film, an original treatment of a topical theme. Where can I order my own robot? We laughed a lot which kept out the cold. Best wishes, thanks for a film with lighter humorous moments.</li> <li>• What a great film. I liked the gradual revelation of the characters.</li> <li>• All three of us really enjoyed the film &amp; the evening would have been a total delight apart from the sub zero temperature - indoors!! Talk about suffering for our art!! But an excellent choice - thank you.</li> <li>• Really enjoyed this film. Coherent, understandable, interesting story, minimal violence. A good night out except for the ambient temperature in the Guildhall.</li> <li>• Very good film. It was delightful, surprising, comic and very thought provoking.</li> <li>• I enjoyed it.</li> <li>• I loved it and am recommending the film to friends. An interesting story especially showing how technology changes our personal world. A robot helper could be ours in the near future.</li> <li>• Enjoyed the film x 2 but the cinema was COLD!! Forced us to go Prezzo's to warm up.</li> <li>• A delightful simple film where I didn't have to think too much and there were lots of laughs. Just what we needed on such a cold evening.</li> <li>• What a moving, funny, thought provoking film. Enjoyment of the film was slightly spoilt by how cold the theatre was.</li> <li>• Good film – but I would have enjoyed it more if the Guildhall had not been so cold!</li> <li>• Lots of interesting ideas about the robots of the near future with a not entirely unexpected twist at the end.</li> <li>• A film that really draws you in - I felt like a co-conspirator of Robot and Frank. Both funny and touching.</li> <li>• I am still reflecting on the many issues that the film raised especially</li> </ul>	intended). <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Mixed opinions, my partner thought it was good, I thought it was just OK. First time I've ever watched a film with a scarf wrapped around my head though.</li> </ul>	dull and stuffed with stereotypes. The least engaging film I've seen for a long time. However, it was clever of the committee to make it coincide with the Hatton Garden heist verdicts. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Bad Probably a good intention and an amiable short story. But a silly, sentimentalised film - and hugely boring.</li> </ul>
---	---	--

that of memory and how fundamental it is to making us human, the comic elements provided a great contrast.

Thank you for an enjoyable film which held my attention in spite of the decidedly chilly venue- though it was an exceptionally wintry night.

- Thought provoking as well as funny. I was in two minds about going to see the film, but am so glad I did. It gave son much food for thought, about technology, about how we care for our families, especially the elderly and vulnerable. Strange how, despite our knowing that Robot is a programmed machine, we imbue it with human characteristics and react as though to an endearing character. A well made film, and a good choice. Thank you for making it known to us.
- Gentle entertainment with equal amounts of humour and pathos. Despite the cold atmosphere it was very absorbing. Happy New Year to everyone.
- Quietly entertaining, gentle family film. Well done, committee, yet again.
- We had seen it before with two generations of our family. We enjoyed it even more on the second viewing. The story was particularly apposite with the current trial of the Hatton Garden Heist Mob. Luckily the film was fairly short, any longer and we would have been frozen in our seats.
- We both found it good. A lot more thought provoking than one first imagined.