

Review – Pain and Glory

Good – 7

- Very much enjoyed 'Pain and Glory' - only negative observation was that elderly mother had pale blue eyes unlike Penelope Cruz 's dark brown!
- It became more interesting as it progressed. The last scene summed the whole film up. NB Couldn't find the chat icon this time. When not on "whole screen" the screen filled most of the monitor.
- Always an interesting director. Neat twist at the end. Didn't see the side chat panel on the system this time. A couple of updates on the laptop earlier in the day might have been the reason why.
- Not at all what I expected. The only irritation was the difficulty in reading the subtitles when the background was light coloured.
- I enjoyed the film which was about two people coming out of addiction rather than the other way round and how they did it. I particularly liked the scenes with the child, very well done. An unusual story with no big dramatic events but powerful just the same.
