

Review – The Bishop’s Wife

Good – 26	OK – 3
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• I enjoyed the film last night. It was a feel good Christmas film leaving me feeling that I want to go back to those times.</li><li>• Very entertaining if a bit crackly in places.</li><li>• I thoroughly enjoyed the film- funny as well at cheering.</li><li>• Just the right film for Christmas. Very enjoyable.</li><li>• A warm and gently amusing classic for Christmas! Thank you for the tasty</li></ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Very dated. Thin plot. Mawkish and sentimental at times. Some mild humour. Cary Grant played Cary Grant as usual. Set in New York but no black faces, not</li></ul> refreshments beforehand.

- It showed that you do not need to be religious to show compassion and love towards one's fellow human beings. We could do with some more Dudleys in this world!
- Really enjoyed the film and thought it was the perfect choice for Christmas.
- Good but dated – the spirit of Christmas!
- Yes it was a feelgood film, dated, American, a bit cheesy but hey everyone came out smiling. These old black and whites are a popular choice, thank you cinema club!! Christmas cheer in Crofters was jolly too! Thank you.
- Really enjoyed the film. Surprised that it is not a Christmas standard. Can Dudley visit us please?
- Good- great seasonal offering, just what was needed. Lots of happy faces at the end.
- Good- great seasonal offering, just what was needed. Lots of happy faces at the end.
- A very enjoyable pre-Christmas fantasy. Quite imaginative and a product from a less cynical age. We really enjoyed it.
- Made a pleasant evening even better, thank you.
- I enjoyed the film and thought it was 'good'. In keeping with the Christmas spirit (no pun intended).
- An old feel good film. Unlike real life...
- It was good to see this again. It has worn quite well, despite the now unfashionable level of sentimentality. I think there was something wrong with the screening ratio as everyone was short and wide. Fascinating to see Cary Grant and David Niven acting together. Perfect, feel-good, everything-comes-out-right film as antidote for our current times! Thank you.
- I thought the Bishops wife was good.
- Schmaltzy, dated, unbelievable plot line, you name it - it was a cliché of a 1940s movie - and I loved it!!! Just what the doctor ordered for a pre Christmas feel good movie. Well done to have chosen it. An interesting point - I have a heavy cold which even a comedy black maid. A grudging ok.

- Interesting to consider what motivates random acts of kindness and also fund raising.
- But full (humanist) marks for "value human nature - and swap the cathedral for the needy" - and in 1947.

means my hearing - never the best - is well out of order - and I could hear every word. Why can't I hear the dialogue on modern movies?

- Took a little while to get used to the slow pace of the film, but once attuned, it was a very rewarding watch. Drily humourous, well-performed and hit just the right note for Christmas.
- Very enjoyable. A beginning, a middle and an end, and, as we were promised, a nice warm feeling!
- I enjoyed Cary Grant as the angel, and it was a feel good film.